→ BEN HUR. ←

A Tale of The Christ, by Lew Wallace.

This important and realistic set of pictures has been prepared at enormous cost—has taken two years and a half to prepare, but will be found the most beautiful, comprehensive, and realistic set illustrating the story of this widely circulated book that has ever been offered to the public.

It is our intention to publish a similar pamphlet to this, with a photograph of each picture, as soon as the drawings are completed.

Readings for this set will be published in England only, unless we can afterwards make arrangements with the author to issue them in the United States; at present, on account of the Copyright Laws, we cannot do so.

For the benefit of intending purchasers we give both an epitome of this intensely instructive and fascinating story, as well as a List of the Slides contained in the same.

Book I describes the meeting of the Magi in the desert—Their visit to Jerusalem—The arrival of Joseph and Mary at the inn—The surprise and joy of the shepherds—The Magi in the presence of the Christ. In Book II. we are introduced to Ben Hur, the wealthy descendant of a noble family—Watching the arrival of the Procurator, he accidentally dislodges a tile which falls on the Roman—He is seized and sent to the galleys—His house confiscated—His mother and sister removed he knows not where—After three years service he saves the life of the tribune Arrius, who adopts him and makes him his heir—We next find him at Antioch, where Simonides, his late father's manager, resides—Ben Hur tells his story, which is apparently, but not actually doubted—He wanders to the Grove of Daphne, and there sees his ancient enemy, Messala—Messala is a great charioteer, a wealthy Roman—Ben Hur determines to humiliate him, by beating him in the coming chariot race—He gains the friendship of the Arab Ilderim, whose steeds he drives in race—By this time, Simonides has acknowledged him as his master, and supports him with his wealth and influence—In the race, after many exciting scenes, Ben Hur is victorious—His enemy maimed and ruined—Ben Hur's death is plotted, but he escapes—He next goes to Jerusalem to seek his mother and sister—There are no tidings—They had been shut up in a lepers cell, and were discovered and released on the day of Ben Hur's return—As lepers they must flee to the caves—They see Ben Hur asleep on his own doorsteps—They hasten away because of their leprosy—Ben Hur seeks them in vain—At length they hear of Christ—He passes by—They are healed and restored to Ben Hur, etc. The Baptism of Christ—His Miracles—His Betrayal and Death are graphically described, together with Ben Hur's connection with the incidents. The dramatic force of the story cannot be realised from a resumé like this, and there is no room to tell of the lighter parts of the story, but to those who know the book the subjoined List of Slides will be quite explanatory:—

THE IMMORTAL ALLEGORY.

Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress.

Next to the Bible we may safely say that no Book is more widely read than Bunyan's Immortal Allegory. It has been translated into more languages than any other Book save the Bible, and like the Bible the old story is ever new—Our Children will take it up, and are as intensely fascinated with the story to-day as we were in past times. Its fund of Gospel Truth expands and deepens as you meditate upon its beauties—The most casual reader cannot fail to see the Dreamer's meaning, whilst there are depths to be explored, and new beauties to be brought to light by the most profound thinkers.

No book that has ever been published as a mere human production can be compared with the one we are here illustrating—No subject lends itself better to illustration—but it must be evident to all that the Artist must be in sympathy with the Author and must try to catch the Author's spirit and aim or he will fail to rightly interpret the Author's meaning. Most previous attempts to interpret the spirit aright have been pronounced miserable failures, and especially those which have been produced for the Lantern—Many have been pronounced as little better than "Comic Caricatures" and altogether unfit for use in trying to convey religious truth, as when thrown upon the Screen the grotesque costumes and unreal so called "Life Models" have reminded people of the mountebank, rather than the Christian seeking after and hastening to the Celestial City—We venture to say, (as indeed every one who has seen these pictures has said) that no set has ever been drawn which so fully depicts the various scenes in the Pilgrim's career or so faithfully and graphically interprets the Authors' meaning as our Artist has produced in these 60 Pictures—It will be seen that there is a Life's History graduated in the pictures—Christian starts in early life and it takes some years to complete the course, and though his children were well grown up ere his wife started on the Pilgrimage with them, (after he is represented as having crossed the River of Death,) he could not have been an old man, but like many he finished his Pilgrimage in the full prime of manhood. The Artist has taken note of all this and as the story proceeds, and years are covered, his age is advanced in the natural order. Then again, the costumes of the period in which the Dreamer lived have been carefully studied and accurately produced, as well as the architecture of that period—So that, taken as a whole, the Publishers have the greatest confidence in offering it to the public as the best and most accurate interpretation of Bunyan's idea that has ever been prepared for the Screen.
